Hi Folks,

So the forums are nearly online and thus far the new site seems to be a big hit! We know there are still some issues with broken links and things like that and we are sorry. It's a work in progress.

To that end, we're making this post looking for any volunteers interested in helping out with the website & forums, and any other future plans for the website.

We're not looking for people with specific experience though it would be an advantage. If you're enthusiastic and have some drive that's more than enough for us! The systems we'll be using most are: Joomla & SMF. We're also looking for people with any experience writing to help publish more news content and keep the site up to date.

So if you're interested please join us in #webteam or send an e-mail to webteam@sorcery.net explaining why you want to help us, and what you think you could offer!
